A WORD FROM MRS. RUPALI

Talking to your children is great first step in showing them the importance of giving and helping others. Find ways to bring up the topic during every day conversations you have when you are together as family, such as when you're having dinner. You can talk about events happening in your community, stories you've heard about other people's act of kindness, or you can spend time going around the table and talking about one kind act each family did that day.
